“ Growing up, I spent a lot of time in the Narsh household. My older brothers hung out with the Narsh boys, and Sid's daughter Pam was my best friend the first few years of my life. I grieved when they moved away when I was in the third grade. But since Sid's parents lived just next door, we stayed in contact. My memories of him are as a kind man, whose eyes squinted shut when he laughed, and he used to call Pam, 'Pamelta', which made us laugh! He and his family are a huge part of my early childhood memories, and I'm so sad to hear of his passing, because I'll have to wait until I get to heaven to see him again. I hope that knowing that he now has perfect healing, and is at rest in Jesus' arms will be of great comfort to his family. Love and hugs to all ...
